M'SPADDEN INTERURBAN IS BOUND HAS FEED OVER WIRES

charged with having committed an as-sault with a deadly weapon on George Mortenson, baggage master at the Union depot, was given his prelimin-ary hearing in police court this morning and was bound over to the district court. Bond was fixed at $500.

McSpadden claims Salt Lake as his ome, and at the time of the alleged assault was on his way to Rock Springs, Wyo. This was on the night of October 17 and the colored man had stopped off for several hours in this city. When he went to the depot to take a train north he was considerably under the influence of alcohol.

Mortenson, on the witness stand, stated that McSpadden had checked some baggage and was given checks and stone in order to make a sub-for the same. The colored man left stantial bed for the rails, the baggage room, but returned about luggage told him that he had not only given him the checks, but that, noticing his intoxicated condition warned him to be careful lest he lose to call an officer and have him ejected exorbitant price. from the room

The colored man resented this face with it. The gun which McSpad-den used was an antique weapon, possibly a half century old, yet in its single chamber there was a cartridge thirty-two calibre size. When the baggageman was struck by the gun he returned the blow with his fist and, as the colored man reeled, sprang upon him and bore him to the floor. David Poulware, O. E. Swanson and Charles E. Clements, employes at the lepot, rushed to the baggageman' aid and the colored man was soon helpless captive. In the tustle he dropped the revolver, which was picked up by Poulware and turned over to Officer Vance, who took McSpadden to the city prison. Poulware, Swanson and Clements each substantiated the story told by Mortenson.

The attorney who defended McSpadden, in his plea endeavored to show the court that the revolver which the colored man used could not be termed deadly weapon because of its antiquated design and its rather dilapi-dated condition. On this ground he asked that the action against the col-ored man be dismissed. Judge J. D. Murphy declined to entertain the de-fending counsel's motion and stated that the age or design of the gun did not take it out of the category of deadly weapons.

Max Schuman, a well dressed man answered to a charge of vagrancy in the Police court this morning and was given a suspended sentence of 99 days with instruction to get out of town

Schuman when arraigned, pleaded not guilty to the charge and Detective James Pender was called to the stand to testify against the man. According to the officer, Schuman is a profes sional "hanger-on" and has no visible means of support. When the prisoner took the stand in his own defense he stated that he has a mining claim in Idaho which he was working until last February, when he came to Ogden. He said that since his arrival in this city he had lost $1,400. The judge was inclined to doubt th
